

THE RESONANT

A Wisdom spellcaster of elemental harmony

Bend Earth, Water, Fire, and Air in balance — or break that balance and pay the price.

A complete 5e-compatible character class • Four Nation Paths • Full technique list, feats, and magic items

The Resonant is a Wisdom-based full spellcaster who draws on all four classical elements at once, channeling techniques through a Harmony Pool rather than traditional spell slots. Unlike a bending master locked to one discipline, every Resonant has access to Earth, Water, Fire, and Air techniques from 1st level — the real constraint is balance, not access.

Hit Die	d8
Primary Ability	Wisdom
Saving Throw Proficiencies	Wisdom, Charisma
Armor Proficiencies	None
Weapon Proficiencies	Simple weapons
Spellcasting Focus	Any elemental focus (carved stone, water vial, ember case, or wind chime)

Lvl	Prof	Features	Harmony Pts	Cantrips Known	Highest Tier
1	+2	Spellcasting, Harmony Pool, Partial Resonance	4	3	1st
2	+2	Nation Path	6	3	1st
3	+2	—	14	3	2nd
4	+2	Ability Score Improvement or Feat	17	4	2nd
5	+3	—	27	4	3rd
6	+3	Avatar State, Nation Path feature	32	4	3rd
7	+3	—	38	4	4th
8	+3	Ability Score Improvement or Feat	44	4	4th
9	+4	—	57	4	5th
10	+4	Nation Path feature	64	5	5th
11	+4	Sustained Resonance	73	5	6th
12	+4	Ability Score Improvement or Feat	73	5	6th
13	+5	—	83	5	7th
14	+5	Nation Path feature	83	5	7th
15	+5	—	94	5	8th
16	+5	Ability Score Improvement or Feat	94	5	8th
17	+6	Boundless Resonance	107	5	9th
18	+6	Nation Path feature	114	5	9th
19	+6	Ability Score Improvement or Feat	123	5	9th
20	+6	True Avatar	133	5	9th

Cantrips Known tracks how many Ripple-tier techniques (any element) you know and can cast at-will, free, forever — it doesn't limit how often you cast them, only which ones you have access to, the same way a Cleric's cantrip count works.

1st Level

Level 1

Spellcasting

Every morning you take stock of what your body remembers how to do today, and what it still needs to relearn.

You have access to your full technique list across all four elements from 1st level — there is no elemental restriction by Nation Path. Each day, after a long rest, you prepare a number of techniques equal to your Wisdom modifier + your Resonant level (minimum 1), chosen from any techniques whose tier your level allows. You can change your prepared techniques after a long rest. Wisdom is your spellcasting ability for your techniques, and you use it for your save DC and technique attack rolls.

DESIGN NOTE

Prepared casting (the Cleric/Druid model) was chosen over a known-spells model (Sorcerer/Bard) deliberately. Bending isn't a memorized formula that gets forgotten after casting — it's trained body control a character already carries. Preparing fresh each day from the full list fits that better, and removes a second source of dead-feeling levels that a slowly-growing known-spells count tends to create.

Level 1

Harmony Pool

Four elements, one well. What you draw from it is always a question of what you're willing to leave behind today.

Instead of spell slots, you draw techniques from a Harmony Pool of points, sized exactly as the Dungeon Master's Guide spell point variant: 4 points at 1st level, rising to 133 at 20th (see the table above). Technique tiers cost points the same way spell levels do under that system — 2 points for a 1st-tier technique, up through 13 for a 9th-tier technique. The Pool recovers fully on a long rest and does not recover on a short rest. Techniques of 6th tier or higher are limited to one casting of that exact tier per long rest, even if you have the points for two.

DESIGN NOTE

This is a direct reskin of the DMG's own Spell Points table, not a homebrewed curve. That table already increases the maximum castable level at every odd level from 1 through 17 for every full caster in the game — borrowing it means the Resonant gets a real power spike at the same rhythm players already expect from Clerics, Wizards, and Druids, pre-balanced against thousands of actual tables instead of guesswork.

Level 1

Ripple Techniques

The simplest motions are the ones muscle memory never forgets, no matter how empty the well runs.

You know a number of Ripple techniques equal to the Cantrips Known column on the table above, chosen from any element. A Ripple costs no Harmony Points and can be cast any number of times. Its damage dice increase at 5th level, 11th level, and 17th level, exactly as a cantrip would for any other full caster.

Level 1

The Four Harmony Tracks

Every cast leaves a mark on you somewhere, whether you're paying attention to it or not.

You have four Harmony Tracks — Earth, Water, Fire, Air — each ranging 0 to 5, tracked with simple tally marks. Casting a technique of an element raises that element's track by 1, regardless of tier or cost. Tracks reset to 0 only at the end of combat, not on a short or long rest.

DESIGN NOTE

Tracks resetting only at the end of combat, rather than per turn or per rest, keeps table upkeep low: tally marks that only move forward during a fight and clear afterward is the lowest-friction version of this mechanic that still creates real tension.

Level 1

Balance States

Harmony isn't silence. It's four different forces agreeing, for one fragile moment, to move together.

Flowing. When all four tracks are within 1 of each other, you are Flowing: your techniques deal an extra 1d6 damage, and many techniques have an additional Flowing-only rider printed on their own entry. Neutral. Outside of Flowing or Imbalanced, nothing special happens — the warning zone. Imbalanced. When any track is 3 or more points higher than another, you are Imbalanced: the highest element rages, imposing a backlash effect on you chosen by your Nation Path, and the lowest-track element locks — you cannot cast techniques of that element until balance is restored.

DESIGN NOTE

Most full casters reward dumping resources into one thing. The Resonant punishes that instead. A single shared Harmony Pool, rather than four separate per-element pools, is what makes this bite: a per-element pool would let a player safely main-line a favorite element at zero cost, which runs counter to the class's core fantasy. Here, every spend is also a balance decision.

Level 1

Partial Resonance

Three of the four elements lean the same way, and for a heartbeat you can feel which way the fourth wants to go too.

When 3 of your 4 Harmony Tracks are at 3 or higher, the next technique you cast before the end of your turn has its save DC increased by 2, or advantage on its attack roll if it requires one instead. A preview of what full Avatar State will feel like once it comes online at 6th level.

2nd Level

Level 2

Nation Path

Every bender eventually answers the question of what they were born closest to. This is where you start answering it.

You commit to one of the four Nation Paths — The Ascendant, The Steadfast, The Tidecaller, or The Untethered — gaining features from it at 2nd level and again at 6th, 10th, 14th, and 18th. See the Nation Paths section for each Path's full feature list.

DESIGN NOTE

One level to feel out the core loop — Harmony spending, balance tracking, Ripple techniques — before committing to a Path.

4th, 8th, 12th, 16th, 19th Level

Multiple Levels

Ability Score Improvement

Discipline sharpens the same way in any element, on any night you choose to keep training.

When you reach 4th level, and again at 8th, 12th, 16th, and 19th level, you can increase one ability score of your choice by 2, or two ability scores of your choice by 1 each. As normal, you can't increase an ability score above 20 this way. Using this feature, you can also forgo the increase to instead take a feat of your choice from this document's Feats section, for which you qualify.

6th Level

Level 6

Avatar State

For three rounds you stop being the still point between four forces, and become the place where they all arrive at once.

When all four of your Harmony Tracks reach 3 or higher simultaneously, you may use your reaction to enter Avatar State for 3 rounds (concentration). All four tracks spike to 5. Your techniques are Empowered (maximize one damage die per technique cast). You gain one free Ripple technique cast per turn that doesn't use your action economy as normal. All Harmony Point costs are reduced by 1 (minimum 1). Aftermath. When Avatar State ends, all four tracks crash to 0 and you gain one level of exhaustion.

DESIGN NOTE

The full version of this — max tracks, empowered damage, discounted casting — is strong enough that handing it over at 1st level would overshadow the core balance-juggling loop before it's had time to matter. Partial Resonance at 1st level previews the payoff without granting the power; this is where the payoff actually arrives.

11th Level

Level 11

Sustained Resonance

What used to flicker now holds its breath a little longer before it has to let go.

Your Avatar State duration extends from 3 rounds to 4.

17th Level

Level 17

Boundless Resonance

The body finally learns how to come down from anywhere without breaking on the landing.

Avatar State's Aftermath no longer inflicts a level of exhaustion. Your tracks still crash to 0 when it ends.

20th Level

Level 20

True Avatar

There's no countdown left to watch. Just balance, and you, for exactly as long as you decide to stay there.

Once per long rest, you can enter Avatar State as a bonus action with no track prerequisite. It lasts until you choose to end it (no concentration required), and has no Aftermath crash when it ends — your tracks simply return to whatever they were before you entered.

Chosen at 2nd level. Each Path is built to be the best in 5e at its own archetype.

The Ascendant — Fire

Nova and sustain through controlled self-harm. You choose how hard to push every cast.

Level 2

Overdraw

The flame doesn't just burn the air in front of you — it burns through you first, and you let it.

When you cast any damage-dealing technique, you may spend 0 to your proficiency bonus points: each point dealt to you as 1d4 fire damage (no resistance unless separately granted) adds 1d8 to the technique's damage, and also raises your Fire Track regardless of the technique's actual element.

Level 2

Volatile Equilibrium

A true firebender doesn't fear the burn of their own rage. They learn to breathe inside it.

While Imbalanced, your lowest element does not lock you out of casting it, and the maximum number of points you can spend on a single Overdraw increases by 1.

Level 6

Ashen Reserve

Your skin hardens like cooled magma — scarred, but no longer afraid of the heat that made it.

Resistance to fire damage, including your own Overdraw. If you end your turn without having Overdrawn that turn, regain HP equal to your Fire Track.

Level 10

Detonation

Push hard enough and the burn stops being a wound. It becomes fuel.

When you spend your full proficiency bonus on a single Overdraw, you also gain temporary HP equal to the total fire damage you took from it.

Level 14

Burning Current

The fire in your blood stops asking what kind of technique it's feeding and simply makes it stronger.

Overdraw can now empower non-damaging techniques too. Choose one branch when you spend points this way: Reach (+1 target per point), Potency (+1 flat bonus or +1d6 per point, caster's choice of which when spent), or Duration (+1 minute or +1 round per point, matching the technique's existing duration type).

Level 18

Endless Pyre

For one minute, you stop metering the fire at all. The reckoning always comes after, never during.

Once per long rest, gain free Overdraw for 1 minute — spend any number of points with no self-damage. At the end of the duration, take fire damage equal to the total points spent this way, with no resistance.

DESIGN NOTE

Overdraw spends hit points rather than a new resource pool because the brief was a dial built around how much damage a caster is willing to take on themselves — HP is the only resource in the game where that's literally true. Volatile Equilibrium rewarding Imbalance specifically is the one Path that treats the base class's warning state as something to lean into instead of avoid.

The Steadfast — Earth

Tank and battlefield controller. Built to take the hit, then make the enemy pay for it.

Level 2

Mountain's Patience

A mountain doesn't forget a single season it's weathered. Neither do you.

Your Harmony Tracks no longer reset at the end of combat — only on a long rest, or when you choose to release them as a bonus action.

Level 2

Stoneguide

You read the fault line in every strike before it lands, and decide where the break actually happens.

Reaction, when a creature within 5 feet of you is hit by an attack or fails a save against a damaging spell: redirect the effect to a hostile creature within 10 feet of the original target, or to yourself with resistance to the damage.

Level 6

Stoneweight

Every hit you absorb settles into your stance like sediment — pressure becoming bedrock, bedrock becoming weight you can swing.

Gain 1 Stoneweight stack whenever you take attack damage or land a control effect (max equal to proficiency bonus, resets each combat). While holding stacks, +1 AC per stack. Expend any number on a melee attack or Earth damage technique for +1d8 damage per stack spent.

Level 10

Anchor's Pull

The ground remembers whose side it's on. It simply asks first.

Reaction, when a creature within 30 feet moves: root it in place (speed 0 until the start of its next turn) and gain 1 Stoneweight. If you spend 3 or more Stoneweight on this reaction, the creature is also knocked prone.

Level 14

Avalanche

There's no warning shout for this one. Just the ground tilting, and then it isn't ground anymore.

Slam your fist or stomp the ground and bring the earth down on everything in a 60-foot line, 10 feet wide: each creature there makes a Strength saving throw, taking 8d6 bludgeoning damage, knocked prone, and swept to the line's end on a failure, or half damage and no movement on a success.

Flowing. Damage increases to 10d6, and the line widens to 15 feet.

Level 18

The Mountain Endures

Mountains don't fall in a single season. Neither, today, do you.

When you would drop to 0 HP, you may instead drop to 1 HP, gain resistance to all damage and advantage on all saving throws until the start of your next turn, and immediately gain Stoneweight equal to your proficiency bonus. Once per long rest.

DESIGN NOTE

Stoneguide's redirect originally let a character take a hit meant for an ally with no mitigation, which the math showed could eat most of this chassis's HP pool in one swing at low levels. Resistance to the redirected damage is baked into the feature for exactly that reason — the Steadfast stays the wall, but the wall doesn't shatter on its first real test.

The Tidecaller — Water

One of the best controllers and debuffers in 5e, with a scaling healer's kit layered on top.

Level 2

Undertow

The tide doesn't strike once and retreat. It leaves a pull behind in everything it touches.

Whenever a hostile creature fails a save against a Water technique you cast, it gains 1 Undertow Mark (no cap, lasts until end of combat). While holding 1 or more Marks, it has disadvantage on saving throws against your Water techniques. When a Marked creature is the target of a Water technique requiring a save, you may expend any number of its Marks before the roll — each Mark spent this way adds 1 to that technique's save DC.

Level 2

Tidal Shift

Balance is just water finding its level — and you've learned to decide whose water moves.

Once per turn, move 1 point between your own Harmony Tracks. Instead of drawing from your own tracks, you may pull that point from a Marked creature within 30 feet: it has disadvantage on its next attack roll, or its speed is halved until the end of your next turn, your choice.

Level 6

Tidal Mercy

The deeper the current you're standing in, the more of it you can pour into someone else's wounds.

Whenever you restore hit points to a creature with a Water technique or Nation Path feature, it regains additional hit points equal to your current Water Track.

Level 10

Crushing Depths

Three marks and the water just won't let go. Five, all at once, and it stops being water at all — for one terrible, breathless second, it's a fist.

While a creature holds 3 or more Undertow Marks, it is Restrained for as long as it holds them. When you expend 5 or more of a creature's Undertow Marks at once (such as with Undertow), it is also Paralyzed until the end of its next turn.

Level 14

Water Prison

This is the lockdown the marks were always building toward — not a pull anymore, but a wall with no air on the other side of it.

Action, 60 feet, once per short rest: target makes a Strength saving throw, with disadvantage if it currently holds 3 or more Undertow Marks. On a failure, it's engulfed in a sphere of living water — Restrained, unable to speak, unable to breathe, and unable to cast spells with a verbal component. At the end of each of its turns, it can repeat the save, ending the effect on a success, or attempt to break free with a Strength check against your save DC. You can end the prison early as a bonus action.

Level 18

The Tide Turns

Every wave you've ever sent out comes back at once — mercy for your allies, undertow for everyone else.

Action, once per long rest, 30-ft radius centered on you: each hostile creature makes a Constitution save or immediately gains 3 Undertow Marks. Allies in range regain 4d8 + your Wisdom modifier HP and can end one condition.

DESIGN NOTE

Undertow Marks do double duty: they snowball control passively (Restrained at 3 stacked), and they're a resource that can be spent for a stronger, time-boxed effect instead (5 spent at once for a guaranteed but temporary Paralyze, rather than an indefinite one). That spend-or-hold tension was the fix for an earlier version where Paralyzed simply triggered automatically at 5 stacked Marks with no real choice attached to it — folding Water Prison back in as a separate, short-rest-gated technique restores a real full-lockdown option without that automatic trigger doing the same job for free.

The Untethered — Air

A support king built on a free standing bond, plus real upgraded burst tools to match it.

Level 2

Windrider's Balance

You stopped standing still a long time ago. Stillness is where balance gets harder, not easier.

Once per turn, when you move at least 10 feet, adjust one Harmony Track of your choice by 1 (still bound by 0-5), no action required. You also gain 1 Slipstream Charge (max equal to proficiency bonus). You may expend 1 Charge for an additional +10 feet of speed and to ignore difficult terrain until the end of your current turn.

Level 2

Skybound Bond

A current doesn't carry just one leaf. Thread it through everyone close enough to catch.

Bonus action: choose a number of willing creatures within 30 feet, up to your proficiency bonus (can include you), to bond with the wind for 10 minutes or until you use this again. While within 30 feet of you, each bonded creature can add 1d4 to one attack roll, ability check, or saving throw it makes on its turn, once per turn, at no cost to you or it.

Level 6

Windward Step

The wind doesn't ask permission to lift something. It just does, all at once, for everyone caught in it.

Bonus action, expend 1 Slipstream Charge: up to your proficiency bonus in bonded creatures within 30 feet each gain +10 feet of speed, +1 AC, and advantage on their next Dexterity save or check, until the start of your next turn. Affected creatures don't provoke opportunity attacks while moving on the turn they receive this.

Level 10

Gale's Embrace

What used to be a breeze through the bond is a gale now.

Windward Step's bonus increases to +20 feet of speed and +2 AC.

Level 14

Boundless Chorus

Every charge you've banked becomes breath you give back, all at once, to everyone the wind still remembers.

Action, expend any number of Slipstream Charges: that many bonded creatures within 30 feet each regain HP equal to your Wisdom modifier and can immediately move half their speed without provoking.

Level 14

Tempest Ward

You catch the blow mid-air and decide, in the same breath, where it actually lands.

Once per long rest, reaction: when a creature within 30 feet you can see is hit by an attack or fails a save against a damaging spell or technique, redirect it — choose a different creature within 30 feet of you, ally or enemy, to become the new target. The new target suffers the full effect, no new roll required.

Level 18

Eye of the Storm

At the center of every storm there's a place the wind can't touch. For one minute, you bring everyone you're bonded to inside it.

Once per long rest, bonus action: for 1 minute, all bonded creatures within 30 feet of you have doubled speed and advantage on saves against frightened, restrained, paralyzed, and prone, as long as they stay in range.

DESIGN NOTE

Skybound Bond is a direct Emboldening Bond port — the original single-target Charge economy was checked against that spell and Mantle of Inspiration and came up short on both scope and cost. Everything built afterward upgrades from single-target to proficiency-bonus-scaled multi-target to actually match that benchmark rather than just gesture at it.

Ripple (free) • Current, 1st–3rd tier (2/3/5 pts) • Surge, 4th–6th tier (6/7/9 pts) • Torrent, 7th–9th tier (10/11/13 pts). Every technique gains its Flowing rider automatically while you're Flowing.

DESIGN NOTE

Bridge marks the techniques that don't touch an enemy at all — they reach out and hand fire, stone, water, or air to a willing ally instead, the support half of every element's toolkit. Everything without that tag is something a Resonant does to the battlefield directly: a strike, a ward, a shift in the terrain itself.

The goal with this list was for each element to feel like its own martial art instead of a reskinned spell list with a new coat of paint — Earth reads like a grip that never lets go once it's closed, Water reads like something that found every crack in the wall before anyone noticed it was leaking, Fire reads like restraint that's actively costing the caster something, and Air reads like momentum that never quite runs out. A number of entries below are mechanical adaptations of existing D&D spells — their original wording lives in the Player's Handbook and Dungeon Master's Guide and isn't reproduced here — while others are original constructions built to fill gaps the official spell list never covered. Either way, every one of them was rewritten in its own voice rather than left as a name-swap.

Technique Index

Fire: Ember Lance, Ember Edge, Ember Share, Searing Brand, Wreath of Embers, Pillar of Judgment, Solar Flare, Heaven's Wrath, Cataclysm's Herald, Combustion's Wrath.

Earth: Stone Shard, Stoneskin Ward, Grasping Roots of Stone, Bulwark of the Mountain, Stone Bulwark (Shared Stance), Skin of Granite, Unmaking Stone, Bonewall of the Deep Earth, Molten Reckoning, Worldquake, Sundering the Earth.

Water: Frost Needle, Flowing Ward, Hailstorm Volley, Gathering Tide, Tidal Recall, Tide's Command, Heart of Winter, Frozen Reckoning, Eight Arms of the Tide, The Devouring Wave, Bloodtide Mastery.

Air: Tailwind, Quickened Step, Gale's Favor, Crackling Current, Eye of the Tempest, Master of the Gale, Thunder's Chain, Vacuum's Grasp, Tempest's Dominion, Laghima's Release.

Cross-Element: Tandem Eruption.

Fire

Ripple

Ember Lance

A flick of two fingers sends a needle of flame the length of a dagger, fast and almost lazy.

Ranged spell attack, 60 ft: 1d10 fire damage on a hit.

1st • 2 pts • Bridge (Ally)

Ember Edge

You breathe across the blade and it remembers, for a while, what it feels like to be lava.

Bonus action, touch a weapon or 10 pieces of ammunition: it deals an extra 1d6 fire damage on a hit for 1 minute.

Flowing. Targets hit also take 1d4 fire damage at the start of their next turn.

2nd • 3 pts • Bridge (Ally)

Ember Share

The fire you've shared with an ally doesn't wait for your permission to answer a hit.

Reaction, when an ally within 30 ft is hit by an attack: they can immediately use their reaction to attack the attacker, or instead gain resistance to the triggering damage.

3rd • 5 pts • Bridge (Ally)

Searing Brand

Their next swing won't just cut. It'll cauterize.

Bonus action, touch an ally: for 1 minute, their weapon attacks score a critical hit on a roll of 19 or 20, and those crits deal an extra 1d6 fire damage.

Flowing. Those crits ignore the target's resistance to fire damage.

4th • 6 pts

Wreath of Embers

Heat rises off your skin in a shimmer that bends the air, daring anyone to get close.

Action, self, concentration 10 min. Choose Ember Shield (resistance to cold, melee attackers take 2d8 fire) or Ember Wall (60x10 ft wall of fire, 5d8 fire to creatures passing through or starting their turn there, Dex save half).

5th • 7 pts

Pillar of Judgment

A column of white-gold fire drops from nowhere, straight down, like the sky decided someone needed correcting.

Action, 60 ft, 10-ft radius column: Dex save, 4d6 fire + 4d6 radiant, half on success.

6th • 9 pts

Solar Flare

You open your palm and for one terrible second hold something the size and brightness of a small sun.

Action, concentration 1 min: a 5-ft wide, 60-ft line of searing light appears each turn as a bonus action. Con save, 6d8 (fire and radiant) and blinded until your next turn on a fail; half damage, no blind, on success.

7th • 10 pts

Heaven's Wrath

Lightning was never really separate from fire — you just learned to call the part of it that travels faster than sound.

Choose one when triggered: Action, target within 120 ft, Dex save or 12d8 lightning, half on success — or Reaction, when you take lightning damage: redirect it, take no damage, deal that same amount to a creature of your choice within 120 ft, no save.

Flowing. Action mode rises to 16d8; redirected bolts ignore the new target's lightning resistance.

8th • 11 pts

Cataclysm's Herald

The ground doesn't just burn. It keeps burning, like the fire forgot how to stop.

Action, 150 ft, 20-ft radius: Con save, 10d8 fire, persists 1 minute, 4d6 to anyone entering or starting their turn there.

9th · 13 pts

Combustion's Wrath

There's a single point in space, and then there isn't a point anymore, or anything else nearby that used to be there.

Action, 150 ft, a point you can see. Dex save (the point and anything within 10 ft): fail = 18d6 force + 18d6 fire, half on success. Ignores cover, destroys nonmagical structures.

Flowing. Range to 300 ft, +6d6 damage.

Earth

Ripple

Stone Shard

A shard of rock rips itself free of the ground and flies true, sharp as a thrown knife.

Ranged spell attack, 60 ft: 1d8 bludgeoning damage on a hit.

1st • 2 pts • Bridge (Ally)

Stoneskin Ward

Their skin doesn't change color, but it stops feeling like skin, just for a minute.

Bonus action, touch: ally gains +2 AC for 1 minute, no concentration.

Flowing. Also advantage on Strength saves while it lasts.

2nd • 3 pts

Grasping Roots of Stone

Hands made of root and rock close around an ankle before the ground even finishes cracking.

Action, 60 ft: Str save or restrained (Str check vs your DC at end of turns to escape), 2d6 bludgeoning on a fail.

3rd • 5 pts • Bridge (Ally)

Bulwark of the Mountain

Stone plates rise from the dirt and settle over your allies like the earth itself decided to stand guard.

Action, 30 ft, up to 3 allies: each gains +2 AC and immunity to forced movement for 1 minute.

Flowing. Also resistance to bludgeoning damage.

3rd • 5 pts • Bridge (Ally)

Stone Bulwark, Shared Stance

You plant your feet, and for a moment, so does everyone standing with you.

Action: up to three allies can take the Dodge action once before the start of your next turn at no action cost of any kind.

4th • 6 pts

Skin of Granite

Your skin takes on the gray sheen of wet stone, and the next blade that meets it learns the difference.

Action, touch, concentration 1 hour: resistance to nonmagical bludgeoning, piercing, and slashing damage.

5th • 7 pts

Unmaking Stone

Whether you're raising a wall or turning one to mud, the earth simply does what you ask of it — eventually, everything does.

Action, 90 ft: raise a wall of stone, or turn a 40-ft cube of stone into mud, your choice.

6th • 9 pts

Bonewall of the Deep Earth

Pillars erupt from the ground like the bones of something enormous, finally standing up.

Action, 120 ft: raise up to 4 ten-foot stone pillars. Bonus action to topple one: 7d6 bludgeoning in a line, Dex save half.

7th • 10 pts

Molten Reckoning

The ground splits, and what's underneath isn't rock anymore. It's what rock used to be, before it cooled.

Action, 60 ft, 20-ft radius or 60x10-ft line. Dex save: fail = 12d6 fire, sinks in and restrained, 6d6 fire at the start of each of its turns while restrained (Str check vs your DC, or ally action, to pull free); success = half damage, no restrain. Area stays hazardous 1 minute — 3d6 to anyone entering or starting there.

Flowing. Initial damage to 16d6.

8th • 11 pts

Worldquake

The earth doesn't shake politely. It remembers it used to be the only thing that was ever truly still, and it's done pretending.

Action, concentration 1 min, 100-ft radius. Each turn: Con save or prone + 4d6 bludgeoning. Fissures may open: Dex save or fall in (escapable normally, unlike Sundering the Earth).

9th · 13 pts

Sundering the Earth

The ground doesn't open like a door. It opens like a mouth, and then it closes, and it remembers nothing of what it swallowed.

Action, self, 120-ft radius. Dex save: fail = 24d6 bludgeoning, prone, and entombed — can't act or be perceived/targeted. An ally can dig them free (action + Str check vs your DC); the buried creature can also try, at disadvantage. After 1 minute, entombment becomes permanent until removed by Wish-tier magic. Success = half damage, prone, not entombed.

Flowing. Damage to 28d6; fissures stay open the rest of combat, 3d6 to anyone entering.

Water

Ripple

Frost Needle

A drop of water hardens mid-air into a needle of ice before it ever leaves your fingers.

Ranged spell attack, 60 ft: 1d8 cold damage; target's speed -10 ft until the end of its next turn on a hit.

1st · 2 pts · Bridge (Ally)

Flowing Ward

Water finds every crack in a wound the same way it finds every crack in stone — patiently, and all at once.

Reaction (ally fails a save) or bonus action, 30 ft: ally rerolls a failed save, or regains 1d8 + your Wisdom modifier HP.

Flowing. Also clears one condition from the target.

2nd · 3 pts

Hailstorm Volley

Ice condenses out of clear air and falls in a sudden, vicious burst, gone again in a heartbeat.

Action, 60 ft, 5-ft radius: Con save, 3d6 cold damage, half on success.

3rd · 5 pts · Bridge (Ally)

Gathering Tide

For a moment the air around your allies tastes like the sea, and the worst of the day rinses off with it.

Action, 15-ft radius, up to 4 creatures: each regains 3d6 HP and has advantage on their next save before the end of your next turn.

Flowing. Also removes one condition each, chosen individually.

3rd · 5 pts · Bridge (Ally)

Tidal Recall

You read the current of the fight half a second before everyone else does, and hand that half-second to someone who can use it.

Action, 60 ft, ally must see you: until the start of your next turn, that ally can use their reaction to make one weapon attack when a creature they can see ends its turn within 5 ft of them.

Flowing. The attack has advantage.

4th · 6 pts

Tide's Command

Whatever water is nearby remembers it answers to you before it remembers gravity.

Action, 300 ft: control a body of water within range — flood, part, redirect, or whirlpool, your choice.

5th · 7 pts

Heart of Winter

The air in front of you goes white and silent, and everything it touches forgets how to be warm.

Action, 60-ft cone: Con save, 8d8 cold damage, half on success.

6th · 9 pts

Frozen Reckoning

A sphere of absolute cold detonates outward, and for an instant the battlefield looks like the bottom of a frozen lake.

Action, 300 ft, 60-ft radius: Con save, 10d6 cold damage, half on success.

7th · 10 pts

Eight Arms of the Tide

Your arms aren't your arms anymore — they're a dozen ropes of water, and every one of them is furious.

Action, concentration 1 min, self. Reach +10 ft on water melee. As part of your action, water-whip up to 4 different creatures in reach (melee spell attack, 3d8 bludgeoning each). Reaction: water-whip any creature that hits you in melee while in reach.

Flowing. Targets per action to 6, each whip adds 1d8 cold.

8th · 11 pts

The Devouring Wave

There was no ocean here a second ago. There is now, and it has no interest in your plans.

Action, concentration: summon a massive wave (300 ft long, 50 ft high) that moves 50 ft/round through the area. Str save or 12d8 bludgeoning, knocked prone, and swept along; half damage, no sweep, on success.

9th · 13 pts

Bloodtide Mastery

Water moves through every living thing whether they like it or not. You're simply the one currently asking the questions.

Action, concentration up to 8 hours, 60 ft. Up to two creatures make a Constitution save or are dominated — full control of movement, actions, and reactions for the duration. Each repeats the save whenever it takes damage, ending on a success.

Flowing. A third target, and the first save each makes is at disadvantage.

Air

Ripple · Bridge (Ally)

Tailwind

A push of wind at their back, gone as soon as it arrives, but it carries them further than it should.

Bonus action, touch: ally's speed +10 ft until the end of their next turn.

Flowing. Their next move this turn doesn't provoke opportunity attacks.

1st · 2 pts · Bridge (Ally)

Quickened Step

Time doesn't actually move faster. It just feels that way when the wind decides to carry you through it.

Bonus action, touch: the next time the target ally would take the Attack, Dash, Disengage, Help, or Search action before the start of your next turn, they may take it as a bonus action instead.

Flowing. They also gain +10 ft movement that turn.

2nd · 3 pts · Bridge (Ally)

Gale's Favor

The ground stops being an obstacle the moment the wind picks a side.

Bonus action, 30 ft, up to 2 allies: each gains +15 ft speed and ignores difficult terrain until the start of your next turn.

Flowing. One of them also gets a free 10-ft jump, no check needed.

3rd · 5 pts

Crackling Current

Lightning doesn't so much fall in a line as choose one, fast enough that the thunder hasn't caught up yet.

Action, 100 ft: Dex save, 8d6 lightning damage, half on success.

4th • 6 pts

Eye of the Tempest

A small storm gathers at a single point and stays there, perfectly content to wait on whoever walks through it.

Action, concentration 1 min, 20-ft radius sphere within 90 ft. Each creature inside at the start of its turn: Con save, 4d8 (lightning and thunder), half on success. Bonus action: fire a bolt from the sphere at a creature within 60 ft of it for 3d8.

5th • 7 pts

Master of the Gale

The wind across the whole battlefield turns to face you, waiting on an order.

Action, 300-ft radius: control wind speed and direction. Can ground flying creatures (Str save or grounded) or clear gas and fog.

6th • 9 pts

Thunder's Chain

One bolt finds a target. Then it remembers there are others nearby and decides not to be greedy.

Action, 150 ft: Dex save, 10d8 lightning to the primary target, arcs to up to 3 more targets within 30 ft of it for 5d8 each (separate saves).

7th • 10 pts

Vacuum's Grasp

For one impossible second there's no air left in a twenty-foot circle, and everything inside it learns what a vacuum actually wants.

Action, 60 ft, 20-ft radius sphere. Con save: fail = 24d6 (thunder and force) and deafened until end of next turn, pulled 15 ft toward center then pushed 15 ft out; success = half damage, no forced movement.

Flowing. Damage to 28d6, a failed save also knocks prone.

8th • 11 pts

Tempest's Dominion

The sky stops being weather and starts being a conversation, and you're the only one talking.

10-minute casting time (as Control Weather): large-scale weather control over a wide area.

9th • 13 pts

Laghima's Release

You stop being a person the wind moves around and become, for an hour, the wind itself.

Action, concentration up to 1 hour, self. You become wind given form: 120-ft flying speed (full hover), resistance to nonmagical weapon damage, immunity to grappled/restrained/prone. Bonus action each turn: a 60-ft line — Dex save or 8d6 force and pushed 20 ft, half and no push on success.

Flowing. Line damage to 10d6, failed save also knocks prone.

Cross-element finisher

6th • 9 pts • Bridge (Ally)

Tandem Eruption

Two elements answer at once, meeting somewhere in the middle of a line neither of you walked alone.

Action: you and a willing ally each choose a point within 60 ft of yourselves, at least 20 ft apart. A line of erupting elemental force (your choice of damage type) connects them, dealing damage to everything along its path (Dex save, half on success). Your partner chooses the line's exact path with you.

Flowing. The line also leaves difficult terrain, and you and your partner each regain 1 Harmony Point.

Replace Ability Score Improvements at levels 4, 8, 12, 16, and 19. Half-feats grant a +1 to the listed ability alongside their effect.

General

Full feat

Deep Reserve

Even half-spent, the well refills faster than you'd think, given time and quiet.

You regain a number of Harmony Points equal to your proficiency bonus when you finish a short rest.

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Equilibrium's Grasp

A small correction, made before anyone else notices it needed making.

Once per short rest, as a bonus action, adjust one Harmony Track of your choice by 1 (still bound by 0-5).

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Lingering Resonance

Not everything has to fall when the rest of you does.

When your Avatar State ends, choose one Harmony Track to remain at 3 instead of crashing to 0 with the rest.

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Far-Reaching Current

The current was always willing to carry further. You just learned to let it.

The range of any Bridge technique you cast increases by 15 feet. Once per short rest, a Bridge technique that normally targets one creature can affect one additional creature.

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Adaptive Current

What worked this morning isn't always what the fight is asking for now.

Once per short rest, you can swap one prepared technique for a different one of the same level you have access to.

Full feat

Steady Current

A blow can knock you down. It can't make you forget the shape of the motion.

You have advantage on saving throws to maintain concentration on a technique when you take damage, and you can cast techniques with a movement component even while restrained or grappled.

The Ascendant — Fire

Half feat · +1 Constitution

Stoked Fury

The burn was never the point. What it buys you was always the point.

Prereq: The Ascendant. Overdraw's bonus damage die increases from 1d8 to 1d10 per point spent.

Half feat · +1 Constitution

Ember-Fed

Some of the fire you swallow doesn't go to waste. It waits.

Prereq: The Ascendant, Ashen Reserve. Whenever Ashen Reserve triggers, you also bank 1 Overdraw point usable next turn beyond your normal maximum.

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Reaching Flame

Fire was never content to warm just the one person standing closest to it.

Prereq: The Ascendant, Burning Current. Burning Current's Reach branch now affects two additional targets per point spent instead of one.

Full feat

Phoenix Heart

Even at the very end of the burn, there's enough left over to stand back up.

Prereq: The Ascendant. Repeatable. Once per long rest, when you'd drop to 0 HP, drop to 1 instead and immediately gain Overdraw points equal to your proficiency bonus at no cost.

The Steadfast — Earth

Full feat

Unshakable Stance

Everything you've absorbed stays settled in your stance until you decide to spend it.

Prereq: The Steadfast. Stoneweight max increases by 2, and unspent Stoneweight no longer resets at the end of combat — it persists until spent or you take a long rest.

Half feat · +1 Strength

Guided Stone

The ground answers from further away now, and it's gotten better at listening.

Prereq: The Steadfast, Stoneguide. Stoneguide's range increases to 60 feet, and the within-10-feet restriction on the redirect target is removed entirely.

Half feat · +1 Strength

Crushing Momentum

Weight doesn't just hit. It stays, and it slows down everything underneath it.

Prereq: The Steadfast, Anchor's Pull. Once per turn, when you expend Stoneweight on a damaging attack, the target's speed also halves until the end of its next turn.

Half feat · +1 Constitution

Bedrock Heart

A mountain doesn't get tired of standing. It just gets harder to move.

Prereq: The Steadfast. Repeatable. Your hit point maximum increases by 1 per Resonant level.

The Tidecaller — Water

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Drowning Current

It doesn't take much water anymore before the current stops feeling optional.

Prereq: The Tidecaller, Crushing Depths. The passive Restrained threshold lowers from 3 Undertow Marks to 2. The 5-Mark Paralyze burn threshold is unchanged.

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Mercy's Tide

The deeper the current runs through you, the more of it is left over for someone else's wounds.

Prereq: The Tidecaller, Tidal Mercy. Tidal Mercy's bonus healing increases by 2, on top of your current Water Track.

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Twin Current

Balance was never really a once-a-turn kind of decision.

Prereq: The Tidecaller, Tidal Shift. You can use Tidal Shift twice per turn instead of once.

Full feat

Tide-Bound

Some currents don't just touch a person once. They decide to stay.

Prereq: The Tidecaller. Repeatable. Once per long rest, a creature that fails a save against a Water technique gains 2 Undertow Marks instead of 1.

The Untethered — Air

Full feat

Wider Skies

The wind was never short on room for a few more travelers.

Prereq: The Untethered, Skybound Bond. You can bond 2 additional creatures with Skybound Bond.

Half feat · +1 Dexterity

Restless Wind

It never really stops moving. It just gets better at saving some of itself for later.

Prereq: The Untethered, Windrider's Balance. Slipstream Charge maximum increases by 2.

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Surging Current

For a moment, the wind doesn't just carry your allies. It shields them too.

Prereq: The Untethered, Windward Step. When you cast Windward Step, you may expend 1 additional Slipstream Charge to also grant every affected creature resistance to one damage type of your choice (chosen once, applies to all of them) until the start of your next turn.

Half feat · +1 Wisdom

Second Gust

The storm has more than one gust saved up, if you know when to ask for the second.

Prereq: The Untethered, Tempest Ward. Repeatable. You can use Tempest Ward one additional time before needing a long rest.

General

Uncommon, attunement

The Returning Edge

It never really leaves your hand. It just takes the scenic route back.

Any thrown weapon. Flies back to your hand immediately after an attack resolves, hit or miss. You can throw it as a bonus action once per turn even without a feature that normally grants that. Choose bludgeoning, slashing, or piercing damage each time you throw it.

Rare, attunement

Sky-Forged Blade

Forged at altitude, in wind that never stopped pushing while the metal cooled.

Any bladed melee weapon. Counts as magical for overcoming resistance and immunity to nonmagical attacks, deals an extra 1d6 force damage on a hit, and resistance or immunity to force damage doesn't apply against this weapon.

Uncommon, attunement (pair)

Twin Shadows

Two blades that learned to move like they were never actually two.

Two shortswords or scimitars. While wielding both: +1 AC, advantage on Dexterity (Stealth) checks while wearing no heavier than light armor. Bonus action once per short rest: gain advantage on your next Deception or Intimidation check before the end of your next turn.

Uncommon, attunement (pair)

Fans of the Unbending Line

A line drawn in the air, and anything that crosses it pays the line's price instead of yours.

Finesse light weapons, 1d4 slashing. Reaction: deflect an attack that would hit you, reducing its damage by 1d10 + Dex modifier. If that reduces the damage to 0, redirect a thrown weapon or projectile attack back at its source instead, using your own attack bonus and the same damage die.

Very rare, attunement

Wings of the Wandering Sky

Folded, it's just a walking stick. Unfolded, it remembers it was never meant to stay on the ground.

Collapsible staff. +1 quarterstaff while collapsed; while extended into glider wings, gain a 30-ft flying speed (must end each turn airborne or fall), or +30 ft to an existing flying speed. As a spellcasting focus, also grants +1 to Air technique save DCs.

Very rare, single-use, self-recharging

Vial of the First Spring

The water inside it remembers what it was like before anything in the world had learned how to end.

Poured over a creature dead less than a minute: full HP restored, no exhaustion, as Revivify but complete. On a dying or unconscious creature instead: full HP and stabilized, one disease or curse ends. Refills after 7 days, but only once fully emptied and left under open moonlight for a full night.

Uncommon, attunement

Harmonic Focus

A small reservoir of balance that isn't yours, lent out exactly once a day.

Harmony Pool maximum increases by 4. Once per long rest, if you'd run out of Harmony Points, draw on the focus for 1d4 instead.

Legendary, attunement by a Resonant

The Unbroken Circle

A perfect ring carved by hands that understood balance better than anyone alive today.

Harmony Track maximum rises from 5 to 6. You can enter Avatar State with only three of four tracks at 3+, treating the fourth as met. While in Avatar State, resistance to all damage. Once per long rest, when Avatar State would end from duration expiring, extend it by 1 round instead.

The Ascendant — Fire

Uncommon, attunement

Cinder-Bound Gauntlets

The burn still happens. It just doesn't take quite as much of you with it anymore.

Reduce the self-damage taken from each point of Overdraw by 1 (minimum 1 per die).

Rare, attunement

The Phoenix Ember

A coal that never fully goes cold, kept somewhere close to the heart.

Once per long rest, when you'd drop to 0 HP, ignite instead: drop to 1 HP, and every creature within 10 feet takes fire damage equal to your Resonant level.

Very rare, attunement, requires The Ascendant

Blue Flame Core

The hottest part of any flame was never the orange. It's the part nobody can look directly at.

Once per turn when you Overdraw at least 1 point, you can change that technique's damage type to radiant instead of fire, and it deals an additional 1d6 of that type.

The Steadfast — Earth

Uncommon, attunement

Seismic Greaves

Heavy boots that somehow make the ground want to help you move faster, not slower.

Whenever you gain Stoneweight, you also gain 5 feet of speed until the start of your next turn, and you ignore difficult terrain created by your own Earth techniques.

Rare, attunement

Earthen Awakened Soles

Close your eyes. The ground was already telling you everything it knows.

You gain blindsight out to 30 feet, but only through earth, stone, or sand.

Legendary, attunement, requires The Steadfast

Vambraces of the Mountain's Memory

Forged from stone old enough to remember a season before anyone thought to name it.

Your Harmony Tracks no longer reset on a long rest either, unless you choose to release them as a bonus action.

The Tidecaller — Water

Rare, attunement, requires The Tidecaller

Abyssal Manacles

Chains that were never meant to hold a wrist. They hold a current instead.

Crushing Depths' Paralyze burn threshold lowers from 5 Undertow Marks to 4. The first time a creature is Paralyzed this way in a given combat, it also takes cold damage equal to your Wisdom modifier.

Rare, attunement, 1 charge, recharges after a long rest near flowing water or under a full moon

Spirit Water Pendant

A single drop, kept sealed, from a spring that never learned how to stay still.

Action, touch: fully heal a creature and end one disease, poison, or curse. Alternatively, reaction: halve incoming damage to a creature you're touching.

Uncommon, attunement

Tideglass Bracers

Glass cooled from sea spray, clear enough to see the pull happening from across the room.

Tidal Shift's range for drawing from a marked creature extends to 60 feet.

The Untethered — Air

Uncommon, attunement

Featherweight Sash

Light enough that you forget you're wearing it, right up until the moment it matters.

Slipstream Charge maximum +1, and once per long rest you can use Windward Step without spending a Charge at all.

Rare, attunement

Cyclone Signet

The wind is happy to redirect a second blow. It just wants something back for the favor.

Tempest Ward can be used twice per long rest instead of once — but the second use that day also deals you 1d6 force damage.

Very rare, attunement

Whistle of the Sky Spirits

A single note, and something old and half-visible answers from somewhere above the clouds.

Once per long rest, summon a spectral wind-spirit mount for 1 hour or until dismissed: obeys your commands, flies at 80 feet, can carry you plus up to 3 allies.

“You are not a bender of one element. You are the harmonic point where all four meet.”